ALFRED VILLAGE HALL RESTORATION

Alfred, New York

HHL has designed the first phase restoration of this historic 110 year old, former Fireman's Hall building, now used as the Village Hall and Police Station.

The first phase work includes the replacement of the historically significant metal pressed roof tiles. Also included is the clock tower restoration, as well as window and masonry restoration.

Future phases will include interior repairs and improvements, elevator access, and most importantly the restoration of the second level auditorium and mezzanine.
