ERIE COMMUNITY COLLEGE
BURT P. FLICKINGER ATHLETIC CENTER
Buffalo, New York

Following an extensive site selection and test-fit phase with Erie County, HHL then designed this state-of-the art athletic center for its initial use as the 1993 World University Games swimming venue.. Then it became the main field house for the College. It is now considered one of the “fastest pools” in the country. The facility houses 50 meter and 75 yard competition pools, a field house containing three basketball courts and a suspended running track, a wellness center, a small gym for dance and the martial arts, lockers, administrative offices and six academic classrooms.

The award-winning design is adjacent, and connected under a road via a tunnel, to a National Historic Landmark. Construction was completed in two phases: for the Games in June 1993, and subsequently for the College, in December 1993.
